

Dr Ali Harandi is an Associate Professor in Clinical Immunology and currently heading a research team in University of Gothenburg, Sweden. Ali Harandi has a long-standing interest and experience in research and development of vaccines and adjuvants. Systems analysis of vaccines and adjuvants is currently one of the major themes of research in Harandi's team. He has participated in several international research projects on different aspects of vaccine research as coordinator, work package leader and partner. Ali Harandi has been serving as expert, advisor and member to a number of national and European committees, research centers and Biotechs.